THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS. Several Hundred of Them Call on General

The largest delegation representing any organization or branch of business that has visited General Harrison, since his nomination, was/ that of the commercial travelers last night, who, numbering between 400 and 500, congratulated not go as an organization, or representing any political party. The traveling men of Indianapolis have always held the General in the highest regard, and a number of his friends several days ago joined in a call requesting all commercial travelers who desired to pay their respects to the distinguished gentlemen to meet last evening at the wholesale store of Hendrickson, Lefler & Co., at No. 89 South Meridian street. The request induced many gentlemen representing business houses in other cities to make it convenient to be in Indianapolis, and notwithstanding rain fell at the hour set for the meeting, about 300 traveling men, who make Indianapolis and surrounding towns their homes, and 150 from other cities responded to the call, ineluding gentlemen from New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Louisville, Terre Haute and St. Louis. Had it not been for the rain there would have been seven or eight hundred in the procession, but those present decided to make the call as arranged, notwithstanding the rain. The When Band was procured, and at the suggestion of some gentleman a neighboring wholesale notion house was visited, where each man was provided with a red, white and blue neck-tie. Major James R. Ross was marshal for the occasion, and at 7:30 o'clock the march to General Harrison's house began. The gentlemen were often cheered along the line of march, and they themselves frequently hurrahed for Harrison. Every few minutes some one would call out, "What's the matter with Harrison?" and the unanimous re sponse always came: "He's all right."

The weather was so disagreeable that General Harrison was not expecting the call, and did not know of their coming until a few minutes before the gentlemen's arrival. He had no idea so many were coming, and thought there would be no speech-making on the part of the visitors. He therefore did not expect to make any formal response. When the visitors arrived they were met at the door by General Harrison, who gave them a cordial invitation to enter. Passing in one by one each was introduced to General and Mrs. Harrison by David E. Coffin. Before three-fourths were in the house all the rooms were comfortably filled, and when all were in there was a perfect jam in every room and hallway. Three cheers were given for General Harrison, after which Col. Ed. H. Wolfe, of Rushville, representing Hendrickson, Lefter & Co., on behalf of the visitors addressed the General Harrison—The commercial travelers of Indiana, and especially those of this commercial and capital city, the city of your home, have thought it proper to call upon you at this time, and by their presence and through their speaker extend their congratulations for the distinguished honor conferred upon you by the Republican national convention, recently held in the city of Chicago. I wish, first, to state I, is not associated with any desire to subserve partisan ends or invite political comment.

We are not here as Republicans—we are not here as the following of any one political party—on the contrary. I am almonished that there are those in the trary. I am almonished that there are those in the ranks before you who are not in sympathy or accord with the great political organization whose standards have so deservedly been placed in your hands. The gentlemen before you, many of them known to you personally, are the active, energetic, tireless and sleeples representatives on the great highways and thoroughfares of trade and commerce—drummers on the road—if you please—representing the commercial and manufacturing interests of our growing city and State.

We know that during a residence of thirty years in our midst you have witnessed with pride, and in your private and public utterances, heartily commended every laudable effort having for its object the development and stability of the commercial, manufacturing ment and stability of the commercial. manufacturing and industrial interests of our magnificent State. Doving all these years of increasing prosperity your life has been an open book, known and read of all rien, and we believe that whatever the honor conferred however great, or the station to which you may be called, however exalted, you will be found treeding the pathway of conviction and duty as God shall give you the ability to see and determine it.

Regardless, therefore, of all political affiliation or party allegiance, we come this evening to pay our respects—to extend to you our hands, and with them our conover an honor we deem so befittingly bestowed.

Accept, then, our call in the spirit intended, and with us indulge the hope that with increasing facilities, advantages fand opportunities, our advancement and growth as a commercial and manufacturing city. advangement in all that makes a community and people prosperous and contented, may, in years to come, far exceed the grand results already achieved. At the conclusion of his speech three cheers and a tiger were given for General Harrison. The General then stepped upon the sofa, and after the cheering had ceased, spoke as follows: Gentlemen of the Corumercial Travelers' Associa-tion of Indiana and Visiting Friends—I most heartily thank you for this cordial manifestation of your respect. It is to be expected when one has been named for office by one of the great parties that those who are in accord with him in his political convictions will show their in terest in the campaign which he represents, but it is par-ticularly gratifying to me that many of you who differ with me in political opinion, reserving your own opinions and choice, have come here to-night to express your gratification, personally, that I have been named by the Kepublican party as its candidate for

It is a very pleasant thing in politics when this sort of testimony is possible, and it is very gratifying to me to-night to receive it at your hands. I do not know why we cannot hold our political differences with respect for each other's opinions, and with entire respect for each other personally. Our opinions upon the great questions which divide parties ought not to be held in such a spirit of bigotry as will prevent us from extending to a political opponent the concession of honesty in his opinion and that personal respect to which he may be entitled. [Ap-

[Laughter and continued applause.] I do not mean to suggest at all that you are dealers in it yourselves [laughter] in your intercouse with your customers, but I do mean o say that your wide acquaintance with men; that adgment of character and even of the moods of men which is essential to the successful prosecution of your business makes you a very unpromising audi-My memory goes back to the time when there were to commercial travelers. Another: "We will take your order now and deliver the goods in November."] but I shall be giad if any or all of you will remain for a better sequaintance and less formal intercourse. Great applause and rousing cheers for the next President.

Three cheers were again given when the General had finished his speech, and there was a universal expression that "He's all right." Many seain abook bands with him, and nearly all those representing houses in other States were introduced to him the second time. They all had a word of encouragement. One gentle-man, representing a New York house, said: "Twenty-five of our twenty-seven traveling men turned Independents in 1884. I was one of them, but I am back in the fold again. I had a letter from the house to-day stating that every one of terms of General Harrison, and says that he is in dividual is the gist of the measure to the twenty-five would support you." There himself an excellent platform for any party. cussed. A lively debate is anticipated.

were similar expressions from many others. After a pleasant social time the gentlemen formed in line and marched down town again. All were well pleased with the visit.

PHASES OF THE SITUATION. Mr. Clarkson Has Faith in the Success of

Harrison and Protection.

General Harrison bad another day of rest and uiet yesterday-only a few visitors calling. He usied himself, when not engaged in receiving vis.turs, in attending to correspondence. Among the visitors yesterday was Hon. J. S. Clarkson, proprietor of the Iowa State Register, and chairman of the Republican National Committee. He is on his way to New York, to attend the organization of the committee, which takes place in that city next Wednesday, at which time all the members from different States, besides other prominent Republicans, will be present. The outline of the work for the campaign will then be agreed upon. Mr. Clarkson is a Hoosier by birth, though he has been in Iowa for a number of years. General Harrison was always his second choice at Chicago. "I tell you," he remarked, to a Journal reporter, "I found that there was considerable of the old Hoosier blood there yet when they began to talk about Harrison. Then you know we like him first rate in Iowa. He came out to our State and helped us in a campaign when other gentlemen seemed to hold back and manifest considerable reluctance in doing anything for us. Iows has a warm side for our candidate this year."

"Will you give any increased majority?"
"Yes, I think we shall give from 8,000 to 10,-000 of an increase over our Republican majority him upon his nomination. The gentlemen did in 1884. I find that the nomination has been very cordially received all over our State, and especially among the soldier element, of which there is a considerable number in Iowa."

"What do you think of the chances in gen-

"They are first class." "Have you any special reason for saying that or do you judge from general report?" "Well, I have both. It is true that the reports from all directions indicate an extremely favora-ble condition of the party, especially in the East. No party can win a national victory in this country by advocating a commercial policy which has the mianimous and unqualified indorsement of the whole English press. The London papers recognize that Cleveland's policy means free trade, and openly say so, and you read daily the highest eulogies of his statesmanship. Well I do not think the American people are going to give up a policy that they have tried for so long and adopt one untried, so far as they are concerned, and especially one advo-cated by the English press. Great Britain's merchants are not noted, so far as I know, for their broad statesmanship and unselfishness." "Will the Democrats be able to make the pub-posed to free trade, and only mean tariff revision and reform? "No, sir, they cannot get away from the issue in that way. The Mills bill, the Preisdent's message-every act that they have done since the administration has been in power has tended toward one thing—the destruction of the present industrial system. The English press say that Democratic success means the opening of the great markets of the United States to the world. They cannot dodge this issue and advocate one thing in one locality, and a different thing in another. It is a square fight, and I believe the people recognize it as such."

"What about the alleged weakness of General

ic believe in this campaign that they are op-

Harrison with the laboring classes? "That is all nonsense. In the first place, it presumes upon a condition of ignorance among the masses that is an insult to them. Men are reading now, especially so this year. A lie like this charge against Harrison has to be started like the Democrats started the Morey letter against Garfield-to do barm. It must be set going when it is too late for the public to get the facts before the election. Unfortunately for all the Democratic charges against Harrison, they have been fired off, and the public have four months to see how utterly false they are. The effect of any personal charge against him will amount to nothing when the public has been given an opportunity to investigate it. Our canlidate courts investigation this year, in every

Among the other callers on General Harrison in the course of the day was Mr. Charles Emory Smith, of the Philadelphia Press. Mr. Clarkson was in consultation with the General at his residence the greater part of the day, and left at 5:10 for the East over the Panhandie. Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Attorney-general Michener were in the same car. Mr. Michener also goes East to attend the meeting of the national com-

Campaign Emblems. The American flag is quite likely to figure rather more prominently in the coming cam paign than usual. The adoption of it by the Republicans as an emblem and banner, symbolical of the principles which that party represents, has already resulted in filling the drygoods and notion stores with these tiny stars and stripes. Some very beautiful designs have made their appearance, and as the campaign progresses there is likely yet to be improve-ments on these. One of the most artistic of the handkerchiefs yet seen was exhibited yesterday in the window of a leading dry goods house. It was a beautiful silken banner, with a plain was a beautiful silken banner, with a plain white border around it. Upon it the flag was represented as falling in folds from a staff, from which silken tassels also hung. On its stripes the names "Harrison and Morton" appeared, in one corner "Pensions for Soldiers," in another, "Aid for Free Schools," and in still another, "Protection Against Free Trade." It is hardly possible to select an emblem that would be more appropriate and attractive than the one that has been chosen by the Republic-ans, and it is certain to be popular in the canvass. Banners and campaign watchwords often have more significance in political contests than people are aware of. A well-worded alliteration. a good campaign song, a beautiful banner-these are things that are not to be overlooked in election times, and in this respect the Republicans have made a decided hit this year.

He Thinks Well of Harrison. Congressman Bynum is in the city and will remain until next Wednesday, when he will return to Washington. He came here from Cincinnati, where he attended the opening of the Centennial Exposition. "What is your opinion of Harrison?" was asked by a Journal reporter

"I regard Harrison in every sense of the word a man of fine ability. The fact is that he is a much better man than he gets credit for among some classes. He has a clean record; nobody can complain of a single stain against his character, and this is much in his favor. Taking everything into consideration, I consider Gen. Harrison as good a candidate as the Republicans could put in the field. I myself was partial to McKinley, but that does not figure in the case." In regard to Indiana and Connecticut he said: "As to Indiana, she, along with Connecticut, will be contested by both parties with great bitterness. I cannot give any definite opinion. But leaving her out, I shall be much surprised if Cleveland does not win in the race.'

"What do you consider the weakest point in Cleveland's administration?" "Simply this-the fact that Republican of ficials were not removed quick enough and their places filled with efficient men.'

Meeting of Saw-Makers. A meeting of saw-makers, employes of E. C. Atkins & Co., was held in Masonic Hall last night for the purpose of organizing a Republican club. Intense enthusiasm was manifested in the movement by all the men present, between fifty and sixty names being enrolled. Quite a number of others are expected to unite with the club. The meeting was addessed by E. C. Atkins and Hon. John B. Elam, and by the ringing applause that interrupted them from time to time, it is evident that the saw-makers intend that their firm support shall be given to General Harrison. A permanent organization will be effected in the near future, at which time the club will be addressed by prominent citizens.

A Word from Illinois.

Mr. W. H. Cooper, of Miner & Cooper, is in receipt of a letter from a friend in Illinois whom he met at Chicago recently. The letter says: "You Harrison men made your point. Now all we out here want of you is to carry Indiana and we are with you, and will be found up to the mark in Illinois. We like Harrison out this way; we like his principles, his honesty and his pluck as evidenced by his followers at Chicago."

A Good Platform in Himself.

Mr. Albert T. Griffin, chairman of the national anti-saloon Republican organization, was in th city yesterday. He was on his way East, intending to go to New York soon to do some campaign work for the committee of which he is chairman. He has been in Minnesota since the Chicago convention. A BENEFICIAL INSTITUTION.

Uses of the Young Men's Christian Association and a Report of Its Work.

The Indianapolis Y. M. C. A. has published a pamphlet showing the present condition of the association and the work that has been accomplished by it the past year, together with a statement of the fivancial needs in providing for the future. The present membership is 970, whom 403 are active and 567 associate members. The work of the year has been in many ways beneficial and satisfactory. One of the most important departments, and one which been a complete success, that of the free evening classes. These were organized early in the year and consist of classes in book-keeping, penmanship, type-writing, phonography, German, drawing and vocal music. The classes meet in the rooms on the third floor, which are admirably adapted for the purpose. The religious meetings have likewise been of great benefit and interest. They consist of young men's meetings on Sun-day afternoon, business men's prayer-meetings, teachers' meetings, and training and Bible classes. All of these meetings have increased steadily in attendance.

The reading-room is one of the most practical benefits that the association affords, and the attendance at it, both day and evening, has been large. There is, however, great need of a betecture course of the past season was one of the many enjoyable privileges enjoyed free of charge by those belonging to the association. There were nine entertainments-either lectures or concerts. The gymnasium and bathroom in connection with the association have also been taken advantage of by many. The average daily attendance at the gymnasium has been about 150, and that at the bath-rooms ninety-three. The accommodations in the latter department are very inadequate, and there is an urgent need of a greater number of bathrooms, there being but nine at the present time. Many times, in the evening, members are compelled to wait with twenty persons ahead of them. It is proposed to put in some shower and sponge baths. The association has also done much good home-mission work, such as seeking employment for those out of work, furnishing strangers in the city with good boarding-houses and lending other assistance. The Ladies' Auxiliary, established last November, has been helpful in carrying out all these enterprises. In view of the increased membership and the improvements that will have to be made in consequence, the association estimates that its expenses until September, 1889, will be $20,895, to meet which it has an income of $13,975. This difference the association will endeavor to meet by subscription.

SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS DISTURBED.

Mr. Hendrickson Not Satisfied with Some Things, and Offers His Resignation.

There was a special meeting of the School Board last night, to which the reporters were not invited. The meeting was not called until late in the evening, and the newspapers were not notified, because it was thought that some of the bad feeting that has existed between two or three of the commissioners for some time would crop out, and it was not desired to have made public all that might be said. But few of the members knew what the meeting was for when they received the call, but the purpose developed as soon as the board was called to order by H. C. Hendrickson, who has been the builing and supply agent of the board for several years, handing in his resignation. He was requested by several of the commissioners to give his reasons for such action, but he refused to make any statement, more than that he saw trouble shead. The members of the old committee on heating, ventilation and hygiene and janitors, under whom he worked, asked if they had offended him in any way, and besaid they had not. After a discussion, the particulars of which could not be obtained the board refused to accept his resignation, by a vote of seven to three. Messrs. Frenzel, Kline and Loeper voted to allow him to resign. After the question of Mr. Hendrickson's resignation had been settled, some personal matters that have been threatening an open rupture in the board were discussed with considerable warmth.

While Mr. Hendrickson refuses to give the reason for his determination to resign, it is said that it was on account of Mr. Frenzel having been made a member of the commitunder whose instructions he works. While Kline is still chairman of the commitbe the committee-at least that is what Hendrickson thinks, and as he and Mr. Frenzel have not agreed in the past he decided to retire. As the vote of the board indicated that he would be sustained in what he did he seemed to be content to continue to serve.

A Very Hot Day.

Yesterday was the hottest day of the season. The sun beat down its' direct rays with more than usual force, and there was absolutely no breeze at all. In the middle of the day business was almost entirely suspended, and the streets in some places looked like an Eastern city when all the inhabitants were busy with their afternoon siesta. On Washington street the glare of the sun and heat of its rays were almost unbearable, and the pedestrians who had business on that thoroughfare hugged close to the houses in order to get the benefit of awnings and projections of all kinds. The thermometer regis-

He swallowed a quantity of chloral besides an overdose of morphine. The dose was so large that it was easily removed from his system. Before taking the drug he bad written a note stating that he knew he was going crazy and preferred death to a home in the asylum. A commission to-morrow will pass upon his condi-

The Swatara Arrives at New London, and the General Expresses a Desire to Go on Deck.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 7 .- The Swatara anchored here at 6 o'clock this evening, after a run of ten hours from New York. The following bulletin was issued shortly after the vessel came to anchor:

"General Sheridan has continued to do well. He has shown no unfavorable symptoms, and is apparently not at all fatigued by the day's journey. If conditions are favorable the Swatara will reach Nonquitt to-morrow, and the General will disembark immediately upon her ROBERT O'REILLY. "HENRY C. YARROW."

This morning Mrs. Sheridan left the bedside of her husband and came upon deck. She informed the officers of the vessel that the General was greatly improved. He had passed a very quiet night, and seemed anxious to go up on deck. Of course, this was not permitted, but if the sick man shows as much improvement during the next twenty-four hours as bas been evident in his condition during the last day and night, he will doubtless be allowed to inhale the sea breeze from the deck of the vessel to-morrow. Several New York physicians were taken out to the Swatara by one of the government woats, while. the ship lay in that port, for consultation with Drs. O'Reilly and Yarrow, the attending physi-

Pitcher's Stealings Recovered. PROVIDENCE, July 7 .- The Union Bank officials received word by cable to-day that the whole bundle of securities, bills receivable and other property stolen by Charles A. Pitcher, the defaulting teller, have been recaptured in London. Pitcher had mailed them to "J. A. Roberts." his assumed name, and believed them safe from the bank, and that it was in his power to keep their hiding place a secret until the bank would be ready to compromise and come to terms on a basis of Pitcher's holding onto $150,000 cash.

His stealings aggregated $700,000. The securities will be returned at once. This puts the bank practically upon its feet again, it is claimed, and its only loss will be the expenses of the prosecution and the recovery of the documents. Pitcher is left without anything to ne-gotiate on, and the counsel of the bank says he can be extradited on the ground of forgery after the Canadian authorities get through with him.

Triple Tragedy in Mississippl. NEW ORLEANS, July 7 .- A special to the Times-Democrat from Yazoo City, Miss., says: "News has just been received here of a terrible tragedy which occurred this afternoon at Rising Sun station, Leflore county, five miles this side of Greenwood. Bad blood had existed for some time between S. H. Whitworth, a planter and merchant of that section, and Henry McCarty, another local merchant. Whitworth, McLean and Hoskins on one side and Henry McCarty, P. H. Iver and Sam Austin on the other side, met this afternoon. The first three entered the store of McCarty, armed with Winchesters and pistols. Some words brought on firing. and vey and Austin were instantly killed. Henry McCarty is missing and is susposed to have been killed also. Whitworth and Ben McLean are badly wounded.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 7.-R. B. Parrish, once a wholesale shoe dealer here, reputed worth $100,000, committed suicide this morning because he could not pay his board. He left a note to his landlord regretting that he was unable to done with his trunk and contents. A letter also was received by mail by his landlord, in which Parrish said he met a former friend yesterday who is now worth a million and asked a small loan. It was refused. No mention is made of suicide in either letter, but Parrish was found

AUGUSTA, Me., July 7.—Not long ago, in conversation with your correspondent, the Hon. S. S. Marble, Governor of Maine, said that he should not be surprised if Mr. Blaine should conclude to go back to the Senate. A number of politicians who have lately been seen have expressed themselves to the same effect. But it is said that there is another senatorial boom that is likely to be sprung should Mr. Frye's seat be contested next year by another member of his party, the boom in question being that of Hon. Thomas B. Reed, who is understood to be ready for the place at the first promising oppor-

It is intimated in some political circles that should Mr. Blaine go into a fight Mr. Reed torial ambition this time, preferring to remain in his present position and take his chances for succeeding Speaker Carlisle. Some of the workers think that if Mr. Reed's district goes Democratic in September he will surely become a candidate for the Senate. He has not so far as known, however, declared it to be his intention to cope with Mr. Frye.

THE ALLEGED PLOT.

Chairman Hoge Denies Mr. Stone's Statement -A Burlington Engine Stoned.

CHICAGO, July 7 .- Chairman Hoge denles emphatically that he sent out such a circular as that described by General Manager Stone in last night's dispatches. He says if his name is attached to it, it is a forgery. "Mr. Stone says," said the reporter, "that dynamite was taken from your room at the Grand Pacific, last May, by Bowles."

"It may be," replied Hoge. "The room was always crowded during those times, and dynamite or anything else might have been carried in or out and never attracted any attention." Mr. Hoge appeared a bit embarrassed by the questioning about the circular, but his denial of

Mr. Stone's statement was prompt and given in a decided tone. The prisoners were less inclined to talk than the chairman of the grievance committee. Wilson would only say he was innocent, and expected to get bail. Broderick had nothing to offer, and Bowles laughed at the questions fired

"Is it true that you are a detective?" he was asked. He did not answer at first, but when the question was repeated he lost his smile and replied very earnestly: "No, sir; I positively am, not." The other men did not seem to think their companion was in the employ of a detective agency, either.

As passenger train No. 17, on the Burlington road, was leaving Chicago last evening a rock was thrown through the cab window of the engine, narrowly missing engineer Farnsworth and fireman Corkery. The windows on both sides of the cab were broken. At Riverside, and again at Naperville, the engine was bombarded. At the former place a perfect storm of stones was thrown, battering the sides of the engine and breaking more glass. At Naperville fireman Corkery was struck on the head with a flying missile, inflicting a slight scalp wound, but he was not injured so but that he could con-

A dispatch from Aurora, Ill., says: "The excitement here over the arrest of the engineeers. in connection with the supposed dynamite plot, had somewhat sabsided, last evening, when it was renewed by the arrest of Alexander Smith, one of the striking firemen, charged with complicity in the plot. Deputy United States Marshal Burchard has in his possession warrants for the arrest of three other persons, but the parties are evidently keeping out of the way. Superintendent Rice is here. He is quartered in his private car near the depot, and is person-ally superintending the arrests of the supposed dynamiters. When seen, he was somewhat reticent, and said there was nothing new in the matter that would in any way interest the pub-lic. He said, however, that there would be startling developments within a few days. The yard and depot property are thickly patrolled by Pinkerton men and company employes, and all strangers are closely looked after. It is generally thought that the man Wilson, who was arrested on Wednesday with Broderick and Bowles, is a Pinkerton detective, who had joined the Brotherhood for the purpose of getting into

Alexander Smith, the last man arrested in connection with the dynamite plot, so-called, was taken before Commissioner Hoyne this afternoon and formally bound over in $5,000 bouds for examination on the 13th, with the others. He will probably remain in the custody of the marshal over Sunday. He is a young man of very decent appearance, and the marshal was not inclined to lock him up in jail while there was a prospect of his getting bail. Detective McGinn started for Aurora again to-night, and it is understood he has warrants for three more conspirators there, but that no arrests will be made before Monday. Chairman Hoge, of the strikers' grievance committee, reiterated the denials he has always made, generally and collectively, with the added affirmation that it was all a put-up job by the company to brace up a manager whose position was uncertain and a road that was in financial

Arthur Knows Nothing About It. CLEVELAND, July 7 .- Chief Arthur was seen by a reporter directly upon his return from New Orleans. When asked regarding the arrest of the alleged dynamiters in Chicago he said: know nothing about the matter further than] have read in the papers. The officials of the Brotherhood here have taken no action in the matter as yet. In fact, we don't know whether the men under arrest belong the Brotherhood or not; but this much I will say, that if they are members, and their guilt is established, the Brotherhood will not only expel them, but will do all in its power to make an example of

Mr. Arthur was not inclined to talk. When asked what he thought of the report that high officials of the order were implicated in the alleged conspiracy, he said that the policy of the Brotherhood in the past and the standing of its officers and the vast majority of its members should be a sufficient refutation of such statements. The Brotherhood had always advocated and practiced peaceful methods to carry its point in any struggle, and if they failed they would abandon the fight rather than resert to violence.

A SOCIAL SENSATION.

Managing Editor Moore Elopes with the Wife of the Man Who Befriended Him.

Sr. Louis, July 7 .- Heary W. Moore, managing editor of the Post-Dispatch, has eloped with the wife of John W. Norton. Moore, who is an Englishman, came to St. Louis some years ago and began work as a stenographic reporter. He formed the acquaintance of Norton, who was then at the head of several theatrical enterprises, and by whom he was assisted to enter upon a career of usefulness and emolument. The relations existing between Mrs. Norton and More was unsuspected by Norton until day before yesterday, when the truth came out. This was followed by the disappearance of the couple. During a recent illness Norton made over the sum of $40,000 to his wife, who has seemed to be devoted to her husband throughout their married life. She was Miss Emma Stodeman before her marriage with Norton, and was formerly the leading lady in John McCuilough's company. It appears that the couple have been unduly intimate for over a year, but their liaison was not known to Mr. Norton until Thursday last, when the fact was conveyed to him through an anonymous letter. On Thursday evening Norton met Moore and Mrs. Norton at the corner of Lucas and Jefferson avenues, in the western part of the city, and attempted to shoot Moore, but he was disarmed by a friend who was passing at the time. Mrs. Norton, yesterday, removed her money and other valuables from the Safe Deposit Company, amounting to about $20,000, and at 10 o'clock night she and Moore left the to a carriage, but at this writing it is not known where they went nor who drove them out of town. Mr. Norton is known the country over as a successful theatrical manager and a cultivated gentleman of high character, both in and out of his profession. Mr. Moore has been managing editor of the Post-Dispatch for several pay $5, then due, and directing what should be | years, and has a most estimable wife, who is now at Manitou Springs. Walt Whitman's Iliness.

PHILADELPHIA, July 7 .- The Times this morning says that the friends of Walt Whitman fear he will not recover from the illness with which he has been prostrated for several weeks. The aged poet is now unable to leave his bed at his home at 328 Mickle street. The progressive paralysis with which he has been afflicted for years, is now taking a firmer hold and paraly-zing all his physical power. His physicians say that if he does not rally soon and gain strength his death is only a question of a short time. No one understands his condition better than the aged pard himself. His mind is as bright and his intellect as keen as ever, and he talks calmly and resignedly of his approaching death. He is now past three score years and ten. About

Highly Important Scientific Discovery. NEWPORT, Ky., July 7.—Experiments here, the details of which were made public to-day. have resulted in an extraordinary discovery, if the statements made by those interested can be relied upon. The discovery is that aluminium, which now costs $20,000 a ton, and is produced only in France, can be obtained anywhere by a most simple process and at less than one hundredth part the present expense. The importance of such a discovery can be judged when it is recollected that aluminium is the most generally diffused metal on earth, and has all the beauty of silver, besides being non-tarnishing. non-corrosive, more lasting than ailver, with only one-fourth its weight. In addition, aluminium, alloyed one-tenth of 1 per cent, with iron or steel, increases the homogeneous and tensile strength of the metal nearly half, while for electro-plating purposes it is superior to either gold or silver. The experiments began in an attempt to extract aluminium chemically from common clay and cryolite. This was accomplished in a novel manner, and the operators obtained these by metallic aluminium, chemically pure. Their method was based upon the theory of substitution and smelting the ore in a waterto resist the strong fluoride fluxes. When the mass was quite liquid, it was conveyed into a converter, or covered siag pot, holding about 400 pounds, and the aluminium extracted therefrom by a syphon tap. The slag was returned to the furnace, serving the purpose of the flux ed the necessity of the usual costly intermediary elements, and made the aluminium about as cheap as copper.

To the Editor-My attention has been called to an article signed "An Old Practitioner." which takes exception to an article appearing recently in your paper relative to the discovery of Papoid, the new drug which has produced such remarkable results in the treatment of dyspensia and indigestion. My friend is disin-elined to give the credit of introducing this new drug to the world to Prof. Finckler, of the University of Bonn, and in justification of his claim cites Dr. Bochut's discourse on Papoid before the Sixth Medical Congress in Amsterdam. While I do not wish to disparage Dr. Bochut's efforts before the Sixth Medical College, or to take from him the honor of introducing the drug to that convention, I have data in my possession to prove that this French scientist's remarks were based entirely on Prof. Finckler's discoveries, and that the latter gentleman's discourse before a subsequent congress was in reference to improvements made through a series of later experiments, notably for its use in cases of diphtheria and its manufacture into the Papoid Tablets, which are specially adapted for sore throat and dyspepsia. MEDICUS.
The Papoid Medical Tablets still continue to interest medical scientists.
